Fierce fighting is still proceeding around Toledo, but the actual. position is obscure. The Rebel forces claim to have relieved the Alcazar garrison, but precise information is lacking.

It is learned from Rabat, through an insurgent wireless broadeast, that six Government aeroplanes have been shot down in the last few hours. Two were destroyed on the Avilla front and the other four in the Trubia sector of the Asturias front.

At St. Jean de Luz, refugees from Bilbao state the Government has shot at least 80 hostages and threatens to execute the remainder of captives in its hands if the hombings contirue.

It is reported that 150 houses have been destroyed, with over 100 victims, in yesterday's bombing raids.

A Gibraltar message reports that the Spanish Government fleet from Malaga has reached Bilbao, where insurgent vessels have been blockading the port, but there is no mention of sea-fighting.

According to despatches from Lisbon, the level of the Tagus has risen nine feet, following the opening of the reservoirs by the Government troops near Toledo, shiftings per ounce. and reports from Abrantes states the plantations and low-lying fields of a wide area are threatened by the floods.

-At-Geneva the Spanish Foreign. Minister has handed the League of Nations' secretariat a memorandum detailing alleged breaches of the arms embargo in favour of the insurgents. The memorandum states that not only arms and munitions, but even aeroplanes and tanks have! been sent to the rebels through Portugal.—Renter.

Although the New York Giants and New York. Yankees have won the National and American League pennants respectively, the late-season schedule is being run to a conclusion with enthusiastic crowds still packing the stadiums. New York Glants were whilpped by Brooklyn eight to three and Washington Senators had the surprising experience of hitting fourteen times against the Yankees without scoring a run.. Yanks scored five.

In the National League Boston and Philadelphia shared honours in a double-header, the Braves winning! the opener seven to three and dropplng the nightcap three to four. Thompson hit a homer in the first game for the Braves and in the second engagement Passeau and Aronvich circled the bags for the Phillies.

Cincinnati beat Pittsburgh six to five and Chicago took the St. Louis Cardinals' measure, six to three.

. In the Anterican League Cleveland beat Detroit, nine to one, and Boston and Philadelphia split a doubleheader. The Athletics took the opener eight to four. U.S. GOLD MAY

SWITZERLAND DEVALUATION

Washington, Sept. 27.

The possibility of the United States revising the present stringent restrictions on the export of gold, in order to parmit the metal to flow more freely between nations participating in the newly-achieved monetary agreement, is being discussed in Government financial quarters. It is felt that some outflow of America's huge gold holdings might be expected as a result of such an agreement.

Gold exports regulations at present provide for gold shipments only to countries still on a full gold standard, as were France, Holland and Switzerland, although several exceptions were made to this rule. But if the restoration of a lasting monetary equilibrium between the various economic systems is achieved, it is believed it will be necessary to permit an orderly movement of gold between the countries participating. in the stabilisation agreement, in order to facilitate the adjustment of international trade balances.

NEVER attempt to bleach your hair unless you are a blonde or a near blonde in type. It is footish for women with naturally dark hair to attempt to bleach it as it only makes their skin look horribly discoloured.

One sure way of ruining your hair is to add peroxide to the rinsing water each time your hair is shampooed. This, merely continues to dry the hair and it is only a question of time before it becomes brittle and lifeless.

IF the hair must be bleached it A should be properly done once, and the roots should be touched up when necessary. You cannot bleach your hair properly yourself. It should be done by a hairdresser or else you should get someone to do it for you according to the following instructions.

The peroxide used should be the best possible quality and the strength sold as 20 volumes, and pure 0.880 ammonia should be used. You can buy both the peroxide and the ammonia at your chemist's.

It is absolutely essential that the right proportion of peroxide and ammonia is used. Too much ammonia will damage the hair and produce red tints, and irritate of even blister a sensitive scalp. The ammonla should never exceed more than one part to 30 parts of pero-

Therefore you can place one teaspoonful of ammonia in a large saucer or small bowl and add eight tablespoonfuls of peroxide. Stir the mixture up very thoroughly.

FINE bleach must start at the L back of the head. The hair is divided from the forchead to the name of the neck, the left side being held in the left hand of the operator.

Take a piece of cotton wool which is sonked with the peroxide and dab all along the parting, commencing at the crown and finishing at the nape of the neck.

Then part the hair with a comb, three-quarters of an Inch to the left of the middle parting (look at the parting marked two in the diagram). Repeat the dabbing with the peroxide.

For quite long hair the ends are treated last and the peroxide diluted jonee again. Some people prefer a soft tooth brush to cotton wool for applying the mixture. The whole operation should take from six to fifteen minutes, according to the thickness of the hair.

TT is hard to say a definite time for the bleaching to be effected as this depends on the texture of the hair, its original colour, and the final tone desired. It may be anything from ten to forty minutes. But the hair should be carefully examined at the end of each ten minutes.

When sufficiently bleached it should be thoroughly dried and this should be very gently carried out by pressing a towel lightly over the head until the hair is quite dry, and the hair should be combed continually all the time.

WITHEN the roots are to be touched up, great care must be taken that the bleach does not run on the already bleached hair, or unevenness in colour will

.A little brilliantine should be applied to the bleached lengths or a little non-medicated liquid soap, You can melt eastile soap for this purpose. This should be applied at a length of half an inch on the bleached hair beyond the darkened roots so that the peroxide shall not run. The hair is then divided in the method described and the dark roots only touched up.

It is well to shampoo the hair during the following day or two after bleaching as the halr may be left hard and unmanageable.

A tiny amount of good brilliantine rubbed on the hairbrush makes the hair soft again after brushing and prevents it from becoming

Why Do Husbands Leave Home?

Cards Stacked in Wives' Favour, but they Play Their Hands Badly

By a Husband

Husbands do leave home. According to divorce statistics, the number who adopt this method of trying to squeeze a little extra something out of living is increasing. And yet it shouldn't be so. The average wife, if she only knew it, has the cards well stacked in her favour when it comes to playing a game against life in which an average husband is the stake.

But, even with this initial advantage, so many women contrive to lose, manage to play a good hand badly. Why? Sakdal uprising in Laguna.

IN my despatches from Seville I have given you as accurately as possible news of atrocities practised by Communists and others against Fascists and Monarchists. But owing to the rigid censorship the reporters now in Seville can give only one side of the picture—that which is favourable to the rebel cause.

Occasionally, at some considerable risk, it is possible to smuggle news by way of Gibraltar, but the occupants of cars going from Seville to Gibraltar are searched and any leakage of news is regarded as an act of espionage.

What are the rebels trying to hide from the outside world? They are trying to hide the daily killings which take place as the rebel army marches towards Madrid.

The rebels do not mind the people in the Spanish towns and villages, knowing the Amnesty truth. Indeed, they advertise the wholesale slaughter by For P. I. stacking the bodies on the outskirts of the towns-as a Sakdalists grim example. But the outside world must not

The methods adopted by the rebels in their killings vary. A few days ago a whole street in Seville was "mopped up." I heard volleys and then individual shots, finishing off any one showing a movement.

The bodies were piled on carts. In other cases lorries are used as tumbrils to take victims to the slaughter ground outside Seville.

"NATIONAL DEFENCE," SLOGAN

Tokyo, Sept. 25.

As war tens on heightens in the slogan throughout the length and breadth of Japan.

Only recently, a Tokyo paper published a photograph of a group of abbots, wearing robes and carrying guns on their shoulders. The photograph was taken when these marks were participating in these monks were participating in a military drill.

Also arousing interest in Tokyo were the reports in local papers that during a recent anti-air municeuvre, all inmates of the houses of ill-fame were summoned out to the rects to help in the fire drill. Contrasting this martial spirit, a popular love song among the Japanese boys and girls called "Forget Me Not" was recently banned on the ground that it was undesirable during the present "national emergency." It is unnecessary to say that every nation now finds itself in a state of national emergency. But "national emergency" has a different meaning

FEAR AND PATRIOTISM

Fears mingled with a sense of patriotism have made every Japanese war-minded. In streets, in schools and in the press, one question has been widely asked: "What should we do in the case or national emergency?" By national emergency. they mean foreign attacks from the air and from the sea, attacks which may destroy their lives and property. The sound of army bugles has reverberated throughout Japan during the last few years. It is said blowing now. POLICE THRASHED BY CLUB

The experiment of playing Gough on the right wing was not a success, and I was surprised to see that no posttional changes were made until the Club had the match safe. If Gough had been shifted to centre-haif, Brooks at Inside right and Stephens on the wing immediately after Club had secred their second goal, a whole heap of difference might have been effected.

But in any case the Police attack Incked leadership. Green was casual, and appeared to resign himself to Forrow's dominance.

Morrison was the sole performer who gave the impression that he, was willing to meet the opposition on equalterms and to peat them. Now and again he essayed some neat touches, but 'his' colleagues could not turn them to account.

Brooks was out of his depth at centre-half and only Parker and North touched anything like a standard of play capable of holding up the virile Club quintette.

Blackburn and Grieg were fairly capable as individual players but they sorely lacked understanding and were often persuaded to run into wrong positions.

lies behind the steps taken to secure the views of members on the future application of the principles of the Covenant. Whilst the replies recently received by the Secretariat of the League vary in character, there is general agreement that the League should be made more representative by seeking to bring in other nations not at present members, and that the nachinery of the Covenant should be tightened up so as to make action more prompt when disputes which may lead to war happen to break out. At the same time, there is evident a fear in some quarters that any efficacy rather than otherwise. PROTEST TO PREMIER LIKELY

"A Breach of Neutrality"

By A POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT

London, Sept. 20. Unwittingly the British Government may become involved in the intrigues of the Spanish Communists.

News reached London yesterday that Senora Irriburi, the extremist Spanish deputy known as La Passionariathe passion flower-wishes to visit Great Britain to enlist sympathy for the communists.

Obviously Senora Irriburi wants more than expressions of good will.

Her main object in leaving Madrid is to obtain supplies of arms, ammunition, and aeroplanes.

Conservative M.P.s with whom I spoke yesterday were alarmed at the prospect of Senora Irriburi being allowed to land in England.

From the beginning of the Spanish rebellion Conservatives have supported the Government's policy of strict neutrality. They are new convinced that if Senora Irriburi is permitted to visit this country new suspicions will be roused abroad.

REDS JUBILANT

These suspicions would most certainly do considerable harm to the efforts being made to consolidate an all-European policy of non-intervention: In official quarters yesterday there was no firm indication that the Government intended to take any action. Inquiries in Whitehall led to the statement:

"We have received no definite information that Senora Irribura intends to visit this country. If she applies for permission to land, her application will be dealt with in the usual way. It is for Sir John Simon to decide whether she is allowed to land."

Communists, however, are jubilant, the next few days, it is possible that at the prospect of a visit from a leading Conservatives will make Spanish comrade. A representative strong representations to Mr. Baldof the Communist Party said last win to prevent Senora Irriburi from

NEW FOOTBALL SEASON OPENS ON BRIGHT NOTE

SEVERAL TEAMS STRIKE TIP-TOP FORM

NINETEEN MATCHES PRODUCE 85 GOALS: FORWARDS IN FORM

A very bright note was struck at the opening of the new football season during the week-end, several teams giving first-class displays, showing no signs of the usually typical beginning-of-the-season feeling.

Goals were cheap. Nineteen matches produced 85 goals, with visiting teams more than holding their own. Military sides started off in highly promising manner. Fusiliers and Ulster Rifles both won first and second division encounters, while East Lancashires scored victories in the second and third divisions.

There was an evident spirit of goodwill and friendliness between the teams which added considerably to the enjoyment of the matches, and, it is to be hoped, will prove a happy augury for the remainder of the season.

THE INTERPORT CRICKET TEAM BY AN INNINGS TWO DAYS OF FREE HITTING

The week-end practice match for the Hongkong Interport cricket team played at the Kowloon Cricket Club resulted in a win for the Interporters by an innings and H7 runs. The match was featured by displays of free hitting. E. L. Gosano, though suffering from a game leg, scored a fast century, and all of the Interport team reached double figures. Yesterday L. D. Kilbee, who is 12th man in the Colony side, helped himself to a finc-looking 63. Below will be found my running report of the match covering both days of play.

OUNTRY children collect a queor assortment of pots. One by one they are met with, brought home in the pocket handkerchief or even a match-box, or upturned pinafore. A corner has to be found for them. Again, in the villages, hawkers ply a most varied traffic from door to door .. The farther one lives from a town with its shoppling facilities, the more often these itinorating merchants call round with their rolls of floor covering. their clothes-lin pegs, and their tortoises.

As for us, we foll for/a! pair of tortolses, a not very expensive outlay. Bomeone had given me the idea that a tortoize thrives on green flies, slugs and wood-lice, an omnivorous friend of the garden, a creature capable of tending for itself.

One has a lot to learn. Yet personal observation of even the humblest greature brings its own interest. Our tortoizes turned away time and.

again from pest delicacles one would have imagined they must fancy. But as vegetarians, they advance with a precision and determination upon any gleaming head of dandellon that could hardly be improved upon were they flesh caters.

The same thing applies where the creeping clover on the lawn essays to bloom its unwanted flower. To sit and watch the champing satisfaction of those laws is to feel certain that there are gardening worries as well left to be dealt with by a pair of hungry tortolica. They have given us a nice little problem to solve in another direction, however. After a winter spent hibernating beneath a heap of mand and dried leaves in the greenhouse one of the pair laid an egg. In fact, there have been two, as yet another was laid only a few days ago in a border of young chrysanthemum. All one can do to satisfy the young finders of such monstroattes is to consign their incubation to is hot linen cupboard. Hens cannot manage this business if what one is told is correct—that a tortoise egg takes 14 months to hatch ont under natural conditions.

Hungry Hedgehog

Not long ago a family conference was held to discuss hedgehogs. The conclave came to a unanimous decision that one would be welcome, It may be hard to believe, but it was not long after that one of these weird but docile creatures wandered into the yard, a little dazed on meeting daylight for the first time following a long winter sleep, and was easily Unfortunately, this spiky, playmate made himself far too popular with our family. Nobody quite know what constituted a fair square meal, for a baby hedgehog. Nearly overyone felt it wasn't getting enough. Alas, in a few days it was dead, from too much milk.

Yet another trio of favourites are the rabbits. least there nine now, as Lieselotte has more than fulfilled expectations with the recent delivery of a batch of six.

She is not as certain of her pedigree as the other two, but, as is often so, the mixing of blood makes for liveller, sturdier off-spring. A child grows up to take a lot for granted after watching the maternal preparations even in a rabbit-hutch. Stripping her breast of long tufts of white wool. Liesclotte's cosy anticipations left not even the smallest in doubt as to their purpose. Bhe was making a nest, much as birds will.

Still They Come

Already there are claimants for each of the arrivals, themselves another series of addictons to this miniature but personal menageric.

An old couple of pups are also part of the picture. Both come from the same litter although a stranger would be excused who doubted the fact. So on from pups to silkworms and from these to cocoons. Mid-summer nights with the French windows open and winged trophics like a gigantic eyed-hawk moth pass into the collection. And there is always a cat. Nearby there is a pony, which even though it is another's, shares the convernation on the way to school as do rabbits and pups and silkworms. Perhaps it sounds like exaggeration, but sharing the same field and hanging over the same gate lives a donkey who, like a good many more of this fraternity, prefers a pat on the neck to one on the back-side. It is a wise approach taught early, to come at an animal by its head and not by its heels. And if there is one

The woman she had seen entering the factory stood in it, in her hand an automatic pistol. Before Terry could wheel around to see what had happened to terrify Suzy, the woman so good." raised her arm, took deliberate aim at Terry and fired.

Terry fell on the floor. The woman tossed the pistol toward him, and quietly vanished. Suzy tried to scream, to give the alarm, but her voice would not come. She sagged to the floor beside Terry's limp body. She touched him. He made no sound. She put her head down to his breast. She could hear no beat of his heart. Suddenly her free hand came in contact with something cold. It was the metal of the pistol. In fascinated horror she picked it up and stared at it.

There was a scream. Suzy raised her eyes to the door which was still open. A middle-aged woman with wild eyes stood there. She came swiftly in, looked down at Terry and cried: "You've killed him."

Then, like one possessed, she rushed through the door and down the hall, screaming, "'Arry, quick! Moore 'as been shot dead by his girl! Call the policel 'urry. Police. And a doctor - though 'e can't do Suzy dropped the pistol and look-ed around helplessly. She could hear calls for the police shouted from the windows of the house. She bent over Terry, trying frantically to feel his pulse. Then, when she heard the police whistles outside, she managed to get to her feet.

She thought she would never be able to move again. But she must -she must. By a tremendous effort of will, despite her panic, she reached the door. She noticed her purse. Scarcely conscious of what she did, she picked it up and went through the door.

Below in the hall there was great excitement as the police shouted orders for a passage to be cleared for them. There was no escape there. Perhaps the back stairs—at least she would try. She ran hurriedly. Thank God, the back of the house seemed empty and the key was in the outer door at the foot of the stairs. She crept quietly out just as she heard the police mounting the stairs. She remembered to straighten her hat, to walk calmly as if she were out for a little stroll. She passed a few men and women but at first they were too absorbed hurrying to see what had brought out the police, to notice her and as she wound her way from one street to another, she knew that for the moment at least she had escaped.

"She's gone," some one screamed. as the crowd entered Terry's room and found him lying on the floor. "Get the murderess."

"We'll get her, all right," said one of the police.

Suzy knew her feet must be moving, atthough she felt as if she were standing still. She knew because sometimes she was in a dark, little street, sometimes in a wide, lighted one. Or was she dreaming? Was it all just a horrible nightmare? Would she wake up and find Terry comforting her, asking what her bad dream had been?

She thought she would hall a taxt and ask to be driven a long way, any way at all. But she was afraid the wouldn't be able to speak. Perdaps the driver would notice something strange about her. Best to

TWO COLUMNS MEET

With the Rebels at Toledo, Sept. 28. General Franco's columns entered Toledo last night after fighting all day with the loyalist defenders, and the battle still continues.

Thus far, the rebels under the leadership of Moorish regulars and Spanish Legionnaires, have captured the barracks, hospital and bull ring and have occupied all the northern suburbs. At this stage the loyalists occupied the old city, within walls, including the Alcazar area, where insurgents still garrison the ruins.

In storming the Visagra Gate, General Franco's troops were joined by the Guadarrama River and Bargas columns.—United Press.

Earlier Reports

London, Sept. 27. Fierce fighting is still proceeding around Toledo, but the actual position is obscure. The Rebel forces claim to have relieved the Alcazar garrison, but precise information is lacking.

To Balance World's Trade Ledgers SWITZERLAND JOINS IN DEVALUATION PARADE Washington, Sept. 27.

The possibility of the United States revising the present stringent restrictions on the export of gold, in order to permit the metal to flow more freely between nations participating in the newly-achieved monetary agreement, is being discussed in Government financial quarters. It is felt that some outflow of America's huge gold holdings might be expected as a result of such an agreement.

Gold exports regulations at present provide for gold shipments only to countries still on a full gold standard, as were France, Holland and Switzerland, although several exceptions were made to this rule. But if the restoration of a lasting monetary equilibrium between the various economic systems is achieved, it is believed it will be necessary to permit an orderly movement of gold between the countries participating in the stabilisation agreement, in order to facilitate the adjustment of international trade balances.

must bleach

- DO not approve of bleaching the hair if you can possibly avoid it. But if it must be done I am all for it being done well. Therefore, it is far better for you to know the tricks of the trade than to continue muddling along in ignorance and slowly but certainly ruining your hair. NEVER attempt to bleach your hair unless you are a blonde or a near blonde in type. It is foolish for women with naturally dark hair to attempt to bleach it as it only makes their skin look horribly discoloured.

One sure way of ruining your hair is to add peroxide to the rinsing water each time your hair is shampooed.

This, merely continues to dry the hair and it is only a question of time before it becomes brittle and

IF the hair must be bleached it ahould be properly done once, and the roots should be touched up when necessary. You cannot bleach your hair properly yourself. It should be done by a halrdresser or else you should get someone to do it for you according to the following instructions.

The peroxide used should be the best possible quality and the strength sold as 20 volumes, and pure 0.880 ammonia should be used. You can buy both the peroxide and the ammonia at your chemist's.

It is absolutely essential that the right proportion of peroxide and ammonia is used. Too much ammonla will damage the hair and produce red tints, and irritate or even blister a sensitive scalp. The ammonia should never exceed more than one part to 30 parts of pero-

Therefore you can place one teaspoonful of ammonia in a large saucer or small bowl and add eight tablespoonfuls of peroxide. Stir the mixture up very thoroughly, fIHE bleach must start at the L back of the head. The halr is divided from the forchead to the nape of the neck, the left side being held in the left hand of the operator.

Take a piece of cotton wool which is soaked with the peroxide and dab all along the parting, commencing at the crown and finishing at the nape of the neck.

Then part the hair with a comb, three-quarters of an inch to the left of the middle parting (look at the parting marked two in the diagram). . Repeat the dabbing with the peroxide.

Part the hair at the parting marked three, repeat, and so on up to parting ten, which is at the forehead. Then go back again and part head, continue in the same way up lengths of the hair. Add a table- treated first, and then the right to parting nineteen. By now the spoonful of water to the mixture, side, whole, of , the roots have been Take a larger piece of cotion wool

For quite long hair the ends are treated last and the peroxide diluted

Some people prefer a soft tooth brush to cotton wool for applying the mixture. The whole operation should take from six to fifteen minutes, according to the thickness of the hair.

TT is hard to say a definite time for the bleaching to be effected as this depends on the texture of the hair, its original colour, and the final tone desired. It may be anything from ten to forty minutes. But the hair should be enrefully examined at the end of each ten minutes.

When sufficiently bleached it should be thoroughly dried and this should be very gently carried out by pressing a towel lightly over the head until the hair is quite dry. and the hair should be combed continually all the time.

WIHEN the roots are to be YY touched up, great care must be taken that the bleach does run on the already bleached hair, or unevenness in colour will

A little brilliantine should be applied to the bleached lengths or a little non-mediented liquid, soap, You can melt castile soap for this purpose. This should be applied at a length of half an inch on the bleached hair beyond the darkened roots so that the peroxide shall not run. The hair is then divided in the method described and the dark roots only touched up.

It is well to shampoo the hair during the following day or two after bleaching as the hair may be left hard and unmanageable.

the presidential office-residence,

IN my despatches from Seville I have given you as accurately as possible news of atrocities practised by Communists and others against Fascists and Monarchists. But owing to the rigid censorship the reporters now in Seville can give only one side of the picture—that which is favourable to the rebel cause.

Occasionally, at some considerable risk, it is possible to smuggle news by way of Gibraltar, but the occupants of cars going from Seville to Gibraltar are searched and any leakage of news is regarded as an act of espionage.

What are the rebels trying to hide from the outside world? They are trying to hide the daily killings which take place as the rebel army marches towards Madrid.

"NATIONAL DEFENCE," SLOGAN

Tokyo, Sept. 25.

As war tens on heightens in the Far East, "National Defence First" has become more than a slogan throughout the length and breadth of Japan.

Only recently, a Tokyo paper published a photograph of a group of abbots, wearing robes and carrying guns on their shoulders. The photograph was taken when these monks were participating in a military drill.

Also arousing interest in Tokyo were the reports in local papers that during a recent anti-our managuare, all inmates of the houses of ill-fame were summoned out to the streets to help in the fire drill:

Contrasting this murtial spirit, a popular love song among the Japan-ese boys and girls called "Forget Me Not" was recently banned on the ground that it was undesirable during the present "national emergency." It is unnecessary to say that every nation now finds itself in a state of national emergency. But "national emergency" has a different meaning FEAR, AND PATRIOTISM Fears mingled with a sense of patriotism have made every Japanese war-minded. In streets, in schools and in the press, one question has been widely asked: "What should we do in the case of national emergency?" By national emergency, they mean foreign attacks from the air and from the sea, attacks which nuny destroy their lives and property. The sound of army bugles has reverberated throughout Japan during the lost few years. 'It is suit blowing now. Stirring speeches can be heard here almost every day, all calling upon the government and the Philippine legislature, a large people to hasten preparations for group of Sakdalista leaders and defending the country against toreign attacks, which seemed to the Japanese to be imminent and inevitable.

Although negotiations between the Ministries of Army and Navy and the Ministry of Finance concerning the expansion programmes have reached a deadlock, competent observers here predicted that Minister Baba with eventually bow-to-the-demands of War Minister Terauchi and Navy Minister Osami.

General Terauchi has recently announced his ambition to mould Japan into at "nation of defence." Aside from promulgating laws relating to order, former representatives Mariano the mobilization of the war industry and investigating the nation's available raw materials, General Terauchi is also considering the drafting of a national mobilization law and a detailed programms concerning the enforcement of mobilization.

POLICE THRASHED BY CLUB

The experiment of playing Gough on the right wing was not a success, and I was surprised to see that no positional changes were made until the Club had the match safe. If Gough had been shifted to centre-half, . Brooks at inside right and Stephens on the wing immediately after Club had scored their second goal, a whole heap of difference might have been effected.

But in any case the Police attack tacked leadership. Green was casual, and appeared to resign himself to Forrow's dominance.

Morrison was the sole performer who gave the impression that he was willing to meet the opposition on equal terms and to best them. Now and again he essayed some neat touches. but his colleagues could not turn; them to account.

Brooks was out of his depth at centre-half and only Parker and North touched anything like a standard of play capable of holding up the virile Club quintette.

Blackburn and Grieg were fairly capable as individual players but they sorely lacked understanding and were often persuaded to run into wrong positions.

McHardy alone ran true to form. Some of his saves were both during and clever. He had no chance of stopping four of the five shots which passed him. He might have prevented Wilson's last goal, but the shot (and it was a lovely one) caught him completely unawares. Besides which it was a wicked swerve: sufficient to deceive the most astute goalkeeper. .

FINE COALS

Apart from the play, one of the most pleasing features of the match was the excellence of the goals U.S. Cross rate in London4.95 three completed unusually brilliant movements. this any more seriously than the dozen other announcements of a similar nature made about Perry during the last two or three years. One should remember that Perry no longer remains the "unemployed" tennis player of 18 months ago. He now boasts an important business appointment which, together with the facilities he will enjoy for participating in first class tennis, probably means much more to him than joining a professional tennis "circus", with its attendant risks of financial losses. There is this to be said for Tilden's announcement. Perry is well known to be a very independent-minded young man, and if he feels reasonably sure that he can make more money out of professional tennis than through a normal fulltime job, he will probably become one of the "black sheep". Perhaps Tilden is basing his statement on Perry's observation made after Wimbledon this year that he did not think he would win Wimbledon again because he was getting an old-man!-But this must not be taken too seriously, Everyone knows that if ously, Everyone knows that if Perry remains an amateur his task of defending the Wimbledon title next year will be infinitely greater than this. But it is doubtful whether Perry seriously meant that in a year's time he considers he will be unable to hold his own against the rest of the world's amateur talent. This, I think, can be said: it is not so much the winning of national titles which has kept Perry tied to amateur tennis since 1934, as his keenness to help Britain win and keep the Davis Cup. Now, perhaps, he feels he has played his part and has displayed sufficient loyalty to the L.T.A. to look out for himself. All the same I shall be very surprised if during the next ten days

GERMAN CLUB ATTRACTION

HARVEST FESTIVAL CELEBRATION

A most interesting event, in the admitted that he had stolen the form, of a special Harvest Festival bottles from the King's Dispensary celebration, is to be held in the German Club on October 3, The second man was not charged, because programme will begin at 9 p.m. with the police found that he had no direct an address by the leader of the local connection with the theft, but was Party Group, Mr. M. Hess, who will merely hired by defendant to carry greet the guests, and tell them he parcel.
Mr. Wong said there had been festival, which is a thanksgiving celebration for the harvest, A happy festive spirit will be provided by folk dressed in peasant costumes,

The men of 'Kleinwinkelhausen" will then appear, to sing some 'old German peasant songs, followed by the village youth with iraditional dances. Thus the atmosphere will be prepared for the hilarious farce by the Cobbler Hans Sachs, who lived in 1500, and who depicts the simplicity, mixed with cunning, of the small peasants. This play will tell of a horse thief, and of three peasants, who thought they were very elever but found that a cleverer man stole coats and a goat from them, and made them buy them back without recognising their own pro-

The Schnadnhuepferln, which will follow, will be simple little pieces of poetry, sung to popular tunes, composed by local Germans, and will tell little stories that happened here during the post year. At the Fair, everything from a real big Fair will be represented in miniature, including a bowling alley.

There will be opportunity for anybody who has an idea to enlarge the scope of the programme on the spur of the moment.

As certain preparations have to be made regarding the number of guests, nobody will gain admittance. without an invitation card, but i every member of the German community has invited a large number of foreign friends, who will either also be dressed in peasant clothes or come in mess jackets,-Contributed.

FIRE CHECKED STREET BOYS' CLUB MEMBERS HELP

Good work by police and members of the Street Boys' Club, who were bathing at Telegraph Bay, prevented a fire which started in a hut in the village at 2 p.m. yesterday from spreading and doing serious damage to the entire village.

The fire was caused by a spark from a boller setting fire to the bamboo roof of a hut occupied by a woman, Cheung Leung, and her family. The hut and all the property within were completely destroyed. The blaze was partly extinguished before the arrival of the Fire Brigade, lies behind the steps taken to secure the views of members on the future application of the principles of the Covenant. Whilst the replies recently received by the Secretariat of the League vary in character, there is general agreement that the League should be made more representative by seeking to bring in other nations not at present members, and that the machinery of the Covenant should be tightened up so as to make action more prompt when disputes which may lead to war happen to break out. At the same time, there is evident a Ifear in some quarters that any tampering with the Covenant may weaken the League's our minds ... more delicate fefficacy rather than otherwise. Outcry At Arms Mission To London PROTEST TO PREMIER LIKELY

"A Breach of Neutrality"

By A POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT

London, Sept. 20. Unwittingly the British Government may become involved in the intrigues of the Spanish Communists.

News reached London yesterday that Senora Irriburi, the extremist Spanish deputy known as La Passionariathe passion flower-wishes to visit Great Britain to enlist sympathy for the communists.

Obviously Senora Irriburi wants more than expressions of good will.

Her main object in leaving Madrid is to obtain supplies of arms, ammunition, and aeroplanes.

Conservative M.P.s with whom I spoke yesterday were alarmed at the prospect of Senora Irriburi being allowed to land in England.

From the beginning of the Spanish rebellion Conservatives have supported the Government's policy of strict neutrality. They are new convinced that if Senora Irriburi is permitted to visit this country new suspicions will be roused abroad.

REDS JUBILANT

These suspicions would most certainly do considerable harm to the -efforts being made to consolidate an all-European policy of non-intervention, In official quarters yesterday there was no firm indication that the Government intended to take any action. Inquiries in Whitehall led to the statement: "We have received no definite information that Senora Irribura intends to visit this country. If she applies for permission to land, her application will be dealt with in the usual way. It is for Sir John Simon to decide whether she is allowed to land."

Senora Irriburi has, according to reports to-day, deciared that her delegation will visit London "other European capitals" to emphasise the aesperate need of their "Red brothers" in Madrid and in Northern Spain for war materials.

MATCHES PRODUCE 85 GOALS: FORWARDS IN FORM

A very bright note was struck at the opening of the new football season during the week-end, several teams giving first-class displays, showing no signs of the usually typical beginning-of-the-season feeling.

Goals were cheap. Nineteen matches produced 85 goals, with visiting teams more than holding their own. Military sides started off in highly promising manner. Fusiliers and Ulster Rifles both won first and second division encounters, while East Lancashires scored victories in the second and third divisions.

There was an evident spirit of goodwill and friendliness between the teams which added considerably to the enjoyment of the matches, and, it is to be hoped, will prove a happy augury for the remainder of the season.

THE INTERPORT CRICKET TEAM WON BY AN INNINGS

TWO DAYS OF FREE HITTING

(By R. Abbit)

The week-end practice match for the Hongkong Interport cricket team played at the Kowloon Cricket Club resulted in a win for the Interporters by an innings and 117 runs. The match was featured by displays of free hitting. E. L. Gosano, though suffering from a game leg, scored a fast century, and all of the Interport team reached double figures. Yesterday L. D. Kilbee, who is 12th man in the Colony side, helped himself to a fine-looking 63. Below will be found my running report of the match covering both days of play.

OUNTRY children collect a queer assortment of pets. One by one they are met with, brought home in the pocket handkerchief or even a match-box, or upturned pinafore. A corner has to be found for them. Again, in the villages, hawkers ply it most varied trame from door to door. The farther one lives from a town with its shopping facilities, the more often these itinerating merchants cail round with their rolls of floor covering, their clothes-line pegs, and their

Hens cannot manage this business If what one is told is correct—that a tortoise egg takes 14 months to hatch out under natural conditions.

Hungry Hedgehog

Not long ago a family conference was held to discuss hedgehogs. The conclave came to a unanimous decicon that one would be welcome. It may be hard to believe, but it was not long after that one of these weird but docile creatures wandered into the yard, a little dazed on meeting daylight for the first time following a long winter sleep, and was caully

ROUND ABOUT by

The Showman HE atmosphere which surrounds a neat black jacket and waistcoat, neat striped trousers, a neat black hat, and a pained gentility—all just shaken free of moth-ball-has settled down again over our dear old Foreign Office (affectionately known in all the Chancelleries of Europe as the Wanglers' Rest).

Mr. Anthony Eden has returned to take charge. And, so far as the events of Europe are concerned. I think I am safe in saying pertly that the charge will be a nominal one.

Kindly disposed as I am to all men, I wish the members of the "National" Government would recognise public opinion of their foreign policy. It is Like tass:-

CLUE IN FILM?

The unfinished spool of films was still in the camera. The Pollee are developing the films in the faint hope that one of the photographs taken by Mr. Peacock shortly before the hold-up will include the two men now being sought. A police reward of $500 has been offered for information leading to their conviction,

One of the robbers is described as being about 30 years of age, short and fat, with a point nose and having a east in one eye. He was dressed in white striped cloth and editor garments.

His companion is stated to be about 25, thin, medium to tall build, dressed in white striped jacket and black trousers.

Mr. Peacock, who is a storehouseman at the Kowloon Naval Dockyard, came to Hongkong from Portsmouth three years ago. He is a native of Wigmore, Kent. He has a through bullet wound in his thigh and a slight abrasion on his chest. The value of the stolen property is

ALLEGED ACCEPTANCE OF BRIBE

Chiang Wen-teh, 37, of the Hongkong Police Force, appeared before Mr. S. F. Balfour at the Central Mr. S. F. Ballour at the Central Magistracy this morning, charged with (a) accepting a bribe of 50 cents from a ricksha coolle, Chan Sheung, and (b) misconducting himself as a constable by accepting the bribe.

Defendant pleaded not guilty.

Inspector M. Murphy was the complainant, and the date of hearing for the case was fixed for 11.30 or Saturday,

Outlining the facts of the case, Inspector Murphy said that Chan Shoung was a licensed rickshu coolie, but, not knowing this, the defendant had approached him and asked him to pay him 50 cents a month so that he would not be brought before a Magistrate and charged with being an unlicensed coolic. After this request, Chan went to the Central Police Station, made a report of the incident, and, under instructions, marked five ten-cent pieces which he handed to defendant some time later, on a second request.

Defendant, when arrested, had the marked coins in his possession. is understood that he had been in the Police Force for 13 years.

Shanghai, Sept. 26. Hongkew remained quiet yesterday and, throughout the district and the northern area generally, Japanese sentries and patrols either were withdrawn or substantially reduced. Three Chinese suspects appeared in the First Special District Court and were detained for further questioning. The search for the actual murderers continues. Special headquarters for the Japanese force have been established at the Momoyama dance hall, in North Szechuen Road, with sentries posted about the building and machine-guns replacing the gay lights. At the Japanese Embassy, local representatives of the Gaimusho, Army, and Navy held a conference yesterday morning, and it was decided to send representative to Nanking to make report to the Japanese Ambassador. Mr. S. Knwagoc,
